

We are the Body of Christ!

Each year, St. Anthony of Padua is exceedingly generous in response to the HOPE Appeal, and please know how appreciated that is. It is important that we as a parish family continue to be a leader for our diocesan community in this regard, as this annual campaign makes an immediate impact not just on our parish, but really through so many ministries that provide for needs not just of our parishioners but of our larger Syracuse community. Thank you for your beautiful generosity to our mission work once again.

Cada año, San Antonio de Padua es extremadamente generoso en respuesta al Campaña DE LA ESPERANZA, y por favor sepa lo apreciado que es. Es importante que nosotros, como familia parroquial, sigamos siendo líderes para nuestra comunidad diocesana en este sentido, ya que esta campaña anual tiene un impacto inmediato no solo en nuestra parroquia, sino realmente a través de tantos ministerios que proveen para las necesidades no solo de nuestros feligreses, sino de nuestra comunidad más grande de Syracuse. Gracias por su hermosa generosidad a nuestro trabajo misionero una vez más.

Annual Remembrance of Deceased Alumni, Benefactors, and Friends of St. Anthony's

Have no anxiety at all...make your requests known to God.

In Jesus' Sermon on the Mount (Matthew 5-7) there are of course many spaces of teaching that are vital to our lives, but specifically we might recall today his words, "The eye is the lamp of the body. So, if your eye is sound, your whole body will be full of light; but if your eye is not sound, your whole body will be full of darkness." This connects simply to the beatitude, Blessed are the clean of heart, for they shall see God—and it also calls to mind the truth that what we contemplate, we emulate. In practical terms, the things we allow to occupy our minds and hearts, the spaces of life that hold the greatest sway over us will ultimately be what impacts the 'fruit' we experience most. Consider now our second reading today.

St. Paul writes from a prison cell in his letter to the Philippians: "Have no anxiety at all". Much easier said than done. And yet, this is not cheap advice. At this point, we can say that St. Paul is not a man whose life has really gone 'according to plan.' He is there imprisoned because he said yes to Jesus. From that place he tells the Philippians—and us—not to live exclusively in the future tense. Anxiety lives in "what if" or "what about"...this or that... What if this does not work out? What if I chose the wrong path? What if I am lost and never find my way? Those questions feel responsible. They are actually a refusal to inhabit the only moment God has given us: this one; now in the present.

St. Paul's remedy, however, is not denial. It's not a dismissal of the real circumstances around him, or of the things that legitimately would cause one to fear or feel unstable and insecure. His remedy is rather a change of question. Instead of "what if," we might better ask "what is." What is true right now? Who is with you right now? What gift is already in your hands? Then take that reality to God: prayer, petition, and thanksgiving. Tell Him what you need. Thank Him for what you already have. Do it in the same breath.

The promise that follows is not that every circumstance will become easy. The promise is that the peace of God (Phil 4:9)—peace that does not wait for the situation to improve—will stand guard over your heart and mind in Christ Jesus. It is a promise of the Lord to never abandon us and to assure us of the constancy of his presence, no matter what.

St. Paul then tells us what to feed the mind that wants to wander into tomorrow: whatever is true, honorable, just, pure, lovely, gracious. We do not drift into peace. We choose what we dwell on. As was said before, what we contemplate, we tend to emulate—if we are constantly consuming that which leads us to greater anxiety, if we are constantly allowing our minds and hearts to be filled with evils, with violence, with incessant gossip, with bitterness and resentments, we should expect that we will then only experience the 'fruit' of anxiety from what these things themselves produce. Yes, we might also acknowledge that there are instances where anxiety can be positive and the necessary human response to what is going on in our lives, and that's okay, the importance then lies within our response. We do not have to solve the whole journey today. The invitation from the Lord is always that he desires us to live in a state of grace, to simply do the next duty that can be reasonably done in our day, and speak to our Heavenly Father who already knows and is eager to share with us His presence. Just as we have been hearing for many Sunday's now, the 'vineyard' is His. The future is His. This hour, this 'now' is the one He has placed in your hands. Live it with thanksgiving, and let His peace keep you in the protection of His embrace.

A word from the US Conference of Catholic Bishops...

At this moment of grace, we the bishops of the United States affirm, once again, that the Hispanic/Latino presence among us is a blessing from God for the Church and for our country. The richness of the Hispanic/Latino community has been present in our lands for more than five hundred years. Such blessing, such richness, has become more evident over the past few decades. We have witnessed how our Hispanic/Latino community has reinvigorated the life and mission of thousands of parishes and other Catholic institutions and organizations. God in his mysterious ways has called Hispanics/Latinos to embrace their vocation as joyful missionary disciples to the Church in the United States. Their many gifts and blessings include

• A profound faith in God's providence • Appreciation of life as a gift from God • Love for the family • A sense of community • An authentic Marian devotion • Popular religious devotions and traditions • A sense of hospitality and solidarity • Ecclesial movements and apostolates.

The Hispanic/Latino presence also manifests a profound love for the Church, as well as an increasing leadership role in Catholic institutions and organizations. We are deeply grateful for the evangelizing presence and many gifts of the Hispanic/Latino community.

*A special thank you to all our visitors today
please know you are always

"We are so blessed to have so many generous hearts at St. Anthony's always ready to serve our parish family and wider Syracuse community, too. Thank you to everyone who has contributed to making today's celebration possible. We are honored to welcome so many guests to our Mass this day, too—please know how your presence has enriched our prayer today.

It continues to be evident the many ways our journeys of faith have been enriched by the contributions of those of Hispanic & Latino Heritage. May their collective witness as disciples produce ever more fruit for the Church and the world, especially here in our parish and in our diocese."—Padre Brendan

"Acompañar 13205"

"Acompañar 13205 is a relationship-based discipleship initiative that brings together Bishop Ludden-Grimes students and parishioners from St. Anthony of Padua Parish in Syracuse. Through meaningful relationships, participants will serve the 13205 community by engaging in hands-on service projects, sharing in the richness of culture, growing together in faith, and reflecting on their experiences. Guided by the Holy Spirit, Acompañar seeks to foster authentic connections, inspire lifelong discipleship, and strengthen the bonds between generations, cultures, and the local community."

"Acompañar 13205 es una iniciativa de discipulado basada en relaciones que reúne a estudiantes de la Escuela Secundaria Bishop Ludden-Grimes y feligreses de la Parroquia San Antonio de Padua en Siracusa. A través de un acompañamiento significativo, los participantes servirán a la comunidad de 13205 participando en proyectos de servicio práctico, compartiendo la riqueza de la cultura, creciendo juntos en la fe y reflexionando sobre sus experiencias. Guiado por el Espíritu Santo, Acompañar busca fomentar conexiones auténticas, inspirar el discipulado de toda la vida y fortalecer los lazos entre las generaciones, las culturas y la comunidad local"
